EQUITY AND DIVERSITY

The Society is committed to increasing opportunities for all law graduates from communities that have historically been underrepresented in the legal profession. The Society is working with the Department of Justice, Schulich School of Law at Dalhousie University and Nova Scotia law firms to make the legal profession more representative of the public it serves. One aspect of this initiative requires gathering relevant data on the representation of individuals from historically disadvantaged communities in programs of the Society.

Your voluntary response to the question below will assist our understanding of equity and diversity in the legal profession.

PART 2

FITNESS

In asking the following question, the Barristers' Society is seeking information pertaining to your fitness to practise law pursuant to Regulation 6.5.2 (d). The Society's obligation to protect the public interest operates alongside the lawyers' ethical obligation to respect the human dignity and worth of all persons and to treat all persons with equality and without discrimination.

To that end, the Society will endeavour to deal with issues of capacity without causing unnecessary pain and anxiety for applicants, without discouraging those who need help from seeking it and without contributing to the stigma surrounding mental health issues in particular.

In order to protect your right to privacy, the information you provide will be held in confidence, and will only be provided to the Credentials Committee where it is deemed relevant to a concern regarding your fitness to practice law, and only after you have been notified of the information to be provided to the Committee.

The practice of law is often rigorous, demanding a high level of functioning. Any circumstance which would render you incapable of practising law competently puts clients' interests at risk, and harms the profession's reputation. Having said that, the Barristers' Society recognizes that everyone experiences pressures in life, and we all respond to those pressures differently. You may be quite capable of practising law competently, in spite of your past difficulties. It is the Society's goal as the governing body of the profession to determine if an applicant has an impairment which effectively disables that individual from carrying out the functions normally required of a lawyer. To this end, the Society is looking for information about conditions that you are currently experiencing and which could impair your ability to practise. The Society is not looking for information about past conditions which have been resolved and are not currently affecting your ability to complete the duties of a lawyer. You need only report current circumstances which could affect your ability to perform the duties of a lawyer.

The fact that you may have sought professional assistance for a problem is not a bar to enrolment. In most cases, evidence of having sought professional assistance is positive evidence, as it suggests that you are actively seeking to deal with the circumstances and take control of your life.

On behalf of the Society, LIANS operates a Lawyers Assistance Program, which is completely confidential and open to all lawyers, their families and their staff. It is available to you upon admission to the Nova Scotia Bar. The Society actively encourages individuals to seek the education and assistance they need. The LAP can be contacted at 1-866-299-1299.

If you answer "yes" to the question below, you may be asked to provide further information from a source that the Society deems appropriate.

If you would like to discuss a personal concern confidentially, please contact the Director, Education & Credentials or Administrator, Education & Credentials, at 902-422-1491.

1. Full Name: _____
2. Date of Birth: _____
3. State any changes of name, formal or informal, or other surnames or given names you have used, and when:

4. In asking the following question, the Society is not concerned with issues which have been satisfactorily resolved and do not affect your present ability to practise law competently.

Based upon your personal history, your current circumstance or any professional opinion or advice you have received, are you currently experiencing any condition which is reasonably likely to substantially impair your ability to competently practise law? Yes ☐ No ☐

5. If the answer is “yes” to (4), please provide a general description of the “impairment” which is likely to substantially impair your ability to perform the duties of a lawyer.

Depending upon your response, the Society may ask for additional information from you or another appropriate source.
